

Preserving Indigenous stories

Description

Fiona Clarke and a collaborative work, Strata, produced with NZ sculptor Chris Booth. Image: Chris Booth.

[dropcap style="font-size: 60px; color: #DDCE8D;"] L [/dropcap]ocal Indigenous artist Fiona Clarke, of the Kirrae Whurrong people, is well-known and widely respected for her work in tapestry and painting, but her talents as a storyteller are also gaining attention.

Michaelie Clark, from Warrnambool Books, has chosen Fiona's first children's book as her choice for this week's Bookmarks; it tells the story of Minkgill (the Kirrae Whurrong word for 'star') and features a dozen of Fiona's illustrations.

Importantly, it also introduces Indigenous culture to non-Indigenous children and helps preserve the Kirrae Whurrong language.

Over to Michaelie:

Minkgill Chases the Rainbow is a beautiful, poignant picture book inspired by elements of the Dreamtime, Australia's history and the experiences of our Indigenous people, and the desire for a positive future for all children. It's a simple yet powerful tale of hope, belonging, and of finding your way back up when you fall.

With vibrant images that tell the story as much as the text, we follow Minkgill, a star who tumbled from the sky and walked the earth, searching for his true place in the world. Feeling lost and lonely and sad, Minkgill wanders until he finds a rainbow, which leads him up to meet the Rainbow Serpent, who helps him make his way back home.

[box] Keep up to date with new releases from Warrnambool Books on their Facebook page.[/box]

Catch up on our other Bookmarks...

James Laidler's star-studded novel

Matt Porter: the lighter side of teaching

At last, a cookbook you can use!

Ben Sanders: Retro meets whimsy

Gorgeous working dogs

Category

1. Archive

Tags

1. Bookmarks
2. Fiona Clarke

Date Created

2013/10/25

Author

carol